„Then I’ ve been mainly involved in painting. It’s in contrast with the focused work on paper, that is a substantial part of my work, as to me it should represent a direct, almost uncontrollable, contact with the content. I deal with the question of the ‘womanhood’ from its inner essence. Thanks to this, a completely new figure of a woman comes to life, projecting fragments of the past and visions into herself.“

"I cut my works on paper during my family daily routine. It partly brings me back to my Wallachian origins, where the traditions of handicrafts are rooted (Zuber lace, tapestry making, etc.) Motifs arise from the immediate moment and I connect myself to it in a process where I run away from and alternately I go back to it. I have begun engraving back in the days, during the days of my diploma, when I started using this technique for the first time as a form of definite reaction (relief) during the dialogue with people."
